

PHYSICIANS BAFLED.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, Instructor of Natural Science in Hartsville College, Cured of a Severe Illness by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People After Physicians Failed.

From the Republican, Columbus, Ind.

Prof. R. S. Bowman, the able instructor of natural science in the famous Hartsville College, Ind., is well and favorably known, not only as an educator, but also as a minister of the gospel, as for a number of years he was pastor of the United Brethren church at Charlotte, Mich., before coming to Hartsville.

PROF. R. S. BOWMAN.

Some time ago he had a severe illness which was cured almost miraculously. A reporter hearing of this, interviewed him regarding his experience. Prof. Bowman was in the midst of his work when the reporter called, but he cheerfully gave him his story.

"A year ago last fall," said the professor, "I broke down with nervous exhaustion, and was unable to properly attend to my duties. I tried different physicians but with no relief, and also used many different proprietary medicines, spending almost fifty dollars for these medicines alone. I then succumbed to a siege of the grip in the middle of winter, and was left in a much worse condition, and my digestion became very poor. I was indeed in a bad condition.

"A minister in conference learning of my condition advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had heard of this medicine, but it was with reluctance that I was finally persuaded to try it, as it seemed that nothing could do me any good. However, I procured three boxes of pills and took them strictly according to directions. By the time the last dose was taken I was almost cured, and in better health than I had been for years. I continued using the pills awhile longer and was entirely cured. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Such was Professor Bowman's wonderful story which was further endorsed by the following affidavit:

HARTSVILLE, Ind., March 16, 1897.

I affirm that the above accords with the facts in my case.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 16th day of March, 1897.

LYMAN J. SCUDDER, Notary Public.

Province of Hunan, China, May Be Opened to Foreigners.

Province of Hunan, China, until recently, has been closed to foreigners, although it has long been regarded with envious eyes because of the understanding that it contains rich deposits of mineral which have been jealously guarded. In March last, however, an edict was issued permitting prospectors to enter the country, and it is expected that there will be a stampede of "foreign devils" in that direction. The province is remote and inaccessible by ordinary means of conveyance. It lies in the south part of central China, and is most easily reached by the Yangtze river, from Shanghai, Nankin and Hankow. The mineral districts are accessible only by horseback or by foot travelers over the mountains. The journey may be made easier, although it is more tedious, in horseboats, towed by men, up any of the four great rivers whose basins comprise the entire province and define its limits by their water-sheds. The population has a bad reputation for violence and hatred of foreigners. The capital is Chang-sha, on the River Si-kang, and has about 300,000 population. Besides both anthracite and bituminous coal in large quantities there are immense deposits of iron, lead and an abundance of nickel, bismuth, antimony, silver and gold. The extent of the precious metals has not been determined. No attempt has ever been made to develop it or even to prospect for mines, except by ignorant and inexperienced Chinese, who have no knowledge of mineralogy and possess inadequate and primitive tools.

Whistling as a Punishment.

"It isn't so hard to obey the anti-street-or-dance," said Joseph Boone, an old soldier, on the sidewalk. He has learned never to spit on a pavement for fear of being fined. "It is second nature for me to step to the gutter when I have to spit. That makes me think of a disciplining I once had for whistling. I was walking in front of the colonel's tent whistling. He sent for me and asked: 'Do you like to whistle?' I answered that I did. He then ordered me to stand guard to lead me down to the beach and keep me whistling to the fish till they went to rest that night. The guard was changed every two hours. I whistled until I was hoarse, and when my repertoire was exhausted I whistled something original. I got fifteen minutes off once to smoke."—Arizona Republican.

TIN PAILS HIS HOBBY.

An Old Man in Brooklyn Bought One Every Day.

The old man who lived in two bare rooms in the rear tenement of 264 Pacific street, Brooklyn, was considered a mystery to the neighbors and a source of much innocent amusement to the small boys of the block, says the New York World. He was a quiet, inoffensive old fellow, a bit queer in some of his actions, but he minded his own business, was never cross to the children, and Mrs. Reagan, who lived on the ground floor, had a warm spot in her heart for him. She was about the only one in the neighborhood who knew his name—John V. Gilchrist—and his age—84 years this coming spring. Mrs. Reagan cooked the old man's meals and looked after him as much as he would permit in his hermit like existence. Every day the old man went around the corner to Schnorr's grocery store to buy a few things to eat and a quart of milk, his favorite beverage. It was concerning the milk that his peculiarities were most pronounced. He would never carry it home save in a new tin pail. Every day before purchasing milk he bought a shining new tin pail. When it was empty he laid it aside, never to be used again.

"I guess my time is nearly up," said the old man to Schnorr on Friday afternoon, as he was having a new pail filled with milk. The groceryman said he did not think so.

"Oh, yes it is," continued Gilchrist, "and I am ready to go any time."

Before daylight yesterday morning Mrs. Reagan heard him groaning, and going upstairs she found him apparently near death. She summoned a doctor, but the old man soon passed away, from no particular disease, but because he had lived his allotted time.

When daylight came and the policemen went to take charge of the case they found the worn out old body lying on a mattress on the floor. There was no furniture, save a bureau and two battered barrels.

But piled head high and occupying half the large room were the tin pails that had been used only once to carry home the day's supply of milk. There were nearly 300 of them neatly piled up, and the boys of the neighborhood had carried away hundreds more than the old man had thrown out of the window.

Late in the day an undertaker from New Jersey appeared and took away the body. Over in South Orange the dead man had two wealthy sisters, so the neighbors had heard, who had made him an allowance of $10 a week, and on this he had lived happily among his tin pails until death carried him out of the two bare rooms in the secluded rear tenement and left the pails behind.

Improvement in India.

The latest reports from the Bombay presidency show a very considerable reduction in the mortality from the plague, and indicate that the worst is over. As regards the famine, also, the prospect has been brightened by rains. It will be several months, however, before the effect of these rains is felt in the crops, and meanwhile it is estimated that two million dollars will be needed to keep the people from starving. At last accounts about three million people were employed on the relief works. Charity is active in this country as well as elsewhere, and Congress has appropriated money to furnish a vessel to carry American gifts of food to India.

William Fay, 19 years of age, is in jail in New York on charge of bigamy. He has two wives, one of whom lived with him two years.

PITHY POINTS.

Good manners is the art of making those people easy with whom we converse.

If men praise your efforts, suspect their judgment; if they censure them your own.

Good books, like good friends, are few and chosen; the more select the more enjoyable.

He is rich who saves a penny a year; and he is poor who runs behind a penny in a year.

Reading furnishes the mind only with materials of knowledge; it is thinking makes what we read ours.

To pardon those absurdities in ourselves which we cannot suffer in others is neither better nor worse than to be more willing to be fools ourselves than to have others so.

Pride is like ambergris; a little whiff of it and by snatches, is very agreeable; but when a man holds a whole lump of it to your nose it is a stink and strikes you down.

Rossini's advice to his pupil, Brignoli, was "Never to force the voice beyond the limits of a sweet and musical tone," and to remember that "screaming was not singing."

It is not the placidity of stupid ease that we should covet, but the repose that is requisite for the renewal of exhausted strength, the serenity that succeeds the storm and the salubrity that repays its ravages.

Act toward others as you would they should act toward yourself. It is the same in life as in the midst of the waves; for every navigator there is the same sea, the same tempest, the same dangers to beware of. As long as you are born on a tranquil surface help those who have suffered shipwreck. Who can say that you will not be overtaken by a storm? You are not yet in port; the same conduct that you have shown to the unfortunate will be shown to you by your fellow voyagers.—The Daughters.

DRUNK FOR TWENTY YEARS.

A correspondent writes: "I was drunk on and off for over twenty years, drunk when I had money, sober when I had none. Many dear friends I lost, and numbers gave me good advice to no purpose; but, thank God, an angel hand came at last in the form of my poor wife, who administered your marvellous remedy, 'Anti-Jag,' to me without my knowledge or consent. I am now saved and completely transformed from a worthless fellow to a sober and respected citizen."

If "Anti-Jag" cannot be had at your druggist, it will be mailed in plain wrapper with full directions how to give secretly, on receipt of One Dollar, by the Renova Chemical Co., 66 Broadway, New York, or they will gladly mail full particulars free.

King Humbert is Abstemious.

King Humbert is the only reigning sovereign in Europe who drinks nothing but ice water and abstains entirely from alcoholic liquors—a fact which doubtless will interest people in the United States, where such evanescent of ice water are consumed. King Humbert does not do this on the ground of principle, but on account of his health. He has likewise given up tobacco, and whereas formerly he was wont to smoke dozens of those frightful, ill-smelling, odd-looking domestic cigars known as "Virginias," which have a straw through the center to enable them to draw, and have to be held for fully five minutes in a flame before they will descend to light—he now dispenses with tobacco in every form. This is in consequence of his asthma and bronchitis.

Dishonored Drafts.

When the stomach dishonors the drafts made upon it by the rest of the system, it is necessarily because its fund of strength is very low. Toned with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters it soon begins to pay out vigor in the shape of pure, rich blood, containing the elements of muscle, bone and brain. As a sequent the vigor afforded the stomach, the bowels perform their functions regularly, and the liver works like clock work. Malaria has no effect upon a system thus reinvigorated.

Educational institutions are of value in proportion to the completeness of their equipment and the favorable aspects of their environment. No institution in the world has gathered to itself such complete advantages in the way of equipment and educational ability as the NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC in Boston. Its pupils are instructed as thoroughly and as much care in the beginning of their course, as in the highest grades are offered, while the reputation of the institution and the record made by its graduates both at home and abroad, are at all times a guarantee of the ability of those who pass through its curriculum.

Stop! Women,

And Consider the All-Important Fact,

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are considering your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience in treating woman's diseases is greater than that of any living physician—male or female.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides, a man does not understand—simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman, whose knowledge from actual experience is greater than any local physician in the world. The following invitation is freely offered; accept it in the same spirit:

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Man who is Raising a Big Crop

—realizes that the harvest time is ahead. Ideal farming comprehends not only the growing of the tallest grain—the most tons-to-the-acre of hay; the best farming—the farming that pays—must contemplate something more than this: there is a harvest time, and just in proportion as a crop is saved successfully, speedily and economically, in just that proportion may be measured the season's profit or loss.
